MONTPELIER

Deaths of Miss Marie D. White and Charles Wilson, Former Long-Time Resident.

Miss Marie D. White died at the home of Miss Lizzie W. Langdon Sunday morning, Nov. 4, aged 74 years. Miss White was born in Washington, Aug. 22, 1843, a daughter of Thaddeus G. and Esther White. She is survived by two brothers, J. Wayland White of Burlington and Herman G. White of Denver, Col., and one sister, Flora, wife of Edwin C. Smith of Williamstown. She has been the constant companion and devoted friend of Miss Langdon for 47 years and a resident of Montpelier for 44 years. She was a communicant of Bethany Congregational church and she was deeply interested in its affairs. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Vermont Society of Colonial Dames, as well as of the board of trustees of the Wood Art gallery. The funeral will take place from her late home at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. It is the desire of the family that the sending of flowers be omitted.

Charles Wilson, who was employed by the Central Vermont railway and who came to Heaton hospital in the middle of the summer for an operation to relieve an abdominal trouble, died about 10 o'clock Saturday evening. He had been slowly failing since the operation, when it was found there was no help for him because he was suffering with cancer. He had been employed as a brakeman on the Central Vermont railway and was taken ill when he reached the city one night. A short time after the operation he was able to be about the city, but on Oct. 22 he went back to the hospital for care. G. F. Lackey, overseer, passed most of Sunday in an effort to locate relatives so that the funeral arrangements could be completed.

It was announced Sunday evening by Mrs. G. H. Smith, retiring president of the Vermont Society of Colonial Dames, who held their annual meeting at Fair Haven a few days since, that the society voted $350 towards the support of the Y. M. C. A. work in Europe, such money to go to the fund which is being raised.

W. H. Jeffrey, secretary of the board of charities and probation, spoke at the Berlin Corners church Sunday evening upon the work of his department, building his story for the most part about the poorhouses and over-seers in the state. He said there are 64 poorhouses in Vermont but that as soon as they can be removed the state will legislate so that these will go out of existence. The day has passed when the state will stand for the conditions which he has found existing in most of the poorhouses. He pictured for his audience some of these and said that changes are taking place and will continue to, until the unfortunate will be given a better chance in their last days. He said his experience since appointed to the office of secretary has been that the over-seers try to see how cheaply they can support the poor of their towns, but that must and is going to be changed or the state will, as it has already done, take a hand in the matters. His stories relative to some of the poorhouses showed that the conditions were unfavorable for the lower animals to live in and be healthy. He branched off into the care and treatment of children, telling his audience of finding an orphan's home in Windsor county, in one of the larger towns of that county, where there are 41 children. He gave their names as furnished him by the matron; bread and cocoa for breakfast, apple soup and mush for dinner, a 4 p. m. lunch and a supper which were equally light. Meat balls for Sunday dinner, and no fish were things he mentioned. These are Greek children coming from everywhere. This condition is being remedied. Vermont, he said, is no worse than any other New England state, as he has found from his investigations, but she is going to improve before the other states get started. Prof. Clyde Hill, superintendent of the junior high schools, left this morning for western Vermont in the work of his department.

John N. Harvey of Brattleboro was here yesterday.

Mrs. George Deyette, who has been visiting with Miss Helen Deyette, her daughter, has gone back to her home in Benson.

An extra session of the Vermont dental board is taking place at the State House. Among the dentists who are taking the examination appears Dr. E. E. Johnson, the newly appointed man who will have charge of the work of examination of the children's mouths in the rural schools of the state, as provided in the $10,000 gift presented by Miss Emily and Redfield Proctor for that purpose. Dr. Johnson is a reserve officer in the federal army, liable to service when the government calls him. He wore his uniform while here. He will start his work in the southern part of the state.

Norman Bromley, manager of the Randolph Telephone company, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stranahan Sunday. He was returning from the Adirondacks, where he has been enjoying hunting. He shot an old bear and a cub besides enjoying getting some small game. Mrs. M. G. Bromley, his mother, came here with him and will spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Stranahan, the latter of whom is her daughter.

Mogen R. Tolstrup, whose headquarters are for the present at St. Albans, representing the market department of the office of commissioner of agriculture and the office of markets in the federal government, Saturday morning called here to see how the community market is working in the city. He evidently came here expecting to see the market in full swing but arrived too late for that purpose, with the result that he had to get all his information from those who have watched the working of the market and from Joseph Fitzgerald, who is in charge of the market. It is Mr. Tolstrup's purpose to see what has been accomplished, if friction exists among the merchants as a result of it. Mr. Fitzgerald told him the results obtained as he saw them, while the other men in the committee of arrangements gave him general information.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday evening police, firemen and those persons who heard the vault alarm of the First National bank ringing thought yegmen were attempting a break at the bank. Several calls came to the police station. Officers Baldwin and Sloan responding at once to the call, and both going to the back side of the building because persons on the street could look after that portion of the bank if there was anybody inside. Investigation resulted in nothing. Cashier A. G. Eaton was called by telephone and came to the bank. In some unaccountable manner the alarm had been started. About the only thing shown was the prompt appearance of the police.

State Fuel Administrator H. J. M. Jones and the members of his state committee held a conference in the State House Sunday afternoon when, at their request, several coal dealers in the state appeared before them. The question of coal and the situation relative to securing enough coal for Vermont were under discussion, as well as the needs of the communities from the sections which the dealers represented. Dealers who are without coal enough for their supply were also before the committee. No final results were reached. The administrator has appointed these additional committees: Island Pond, L. A. Cobb, chairman; E. W. Bosworth, E. M. Bartlett; Johnson, N. A. Waterman, chairman; C. A. Riddle, W. E. Tracy, Felix A. Hill died last night at the home of his son, William E. Hill, on the East Montpelier road, after two years' illness. Mr. Hill was a native of Stuckley, Canada, where he was born in 1860. He came to the states in early life and in St. Johnsbury learned the granite cutters' trade. For 30 years he had been employed and engaged in the granite business here until two years ago, when he was obliged to stop work. He leaves a wife, who was Nellie Peck, and three sons, William, who lives on the East Montpelier road, Warner R., a clerk in the postoffice, and Walter S., who is with the ammunition train in England or France. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at his late home and burial will take place in St. Johnsbury.

The Silas Sibley case in Barre is to come up again to-night, as the matter has been turned over to William Wishart as attorney for the city, who will bring it before the aldermen and city council, to see what action they will take. The report of Dr. H. A. Ladd of the state board of health, who inspected the place, was received this morning at the office of the secretary of charity and probation. It reports a very unsanitary condition and a further report was received this morning at the same office that the 10 days in which Mr. Sibley was allowed to clean up the place having expired, Dr. J. W. Stewart had turned the matter over to Attorney Wishart.

WATERBURY

The funeral of Frank Pero was held from his late home yesterday afternoon with burial in the South Duxbury cemetery. The bearers were Clayton Pero, Fred Pero and Dennis Gile. Mr. Pero died Thursday after only two days in bed of arterio sclerosis and pneumonia. The deceased was born in Bolton 70 years ago, the son of Peter and Sarah (Verharte) Pero. Fifty-three years ago he married Almada Wilbur of Duxbury and they have lived at their present home 29 years. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Fred Pero of Bolton and Clayton Pero of Troy, N. Y.; by one daughter, Maude Pero of Duxbury, five grandchildren and one great-grandchild; also by two brothers, Ed Pero of Randolph, Napoleon Pero of Corinth, and a sister, Mrs. Ellen Wakefield of the Center.

Mrs. Helen P. Lathrop, the community worker, who has been a guest of Rev. and Mrs. V. L. Smith, will have a room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Knight.

Rev. Dr. E. C. Bass of Providence, R. I., former pastor of the local Methodist church, while in town assisting Rev. Verne L. Smith on the Vermont conference campaign fund for $200,000 for a permanent fund for retired preachers, raised $1,200.
